Per Albert Datz, son of Herbert Datz, his name is "Zada" but used Nachman to enter country, see also Newman Datz.

Nachman arrived in New York on August 7, 1906 on the SS Zeeland. The ship manifest shows the name to be Nachman Galpern, age 40 years, laborer, having been born in Mohelov, Russia, where he was born 1866. His arrival papers show his nearest relative to be Nachman I. Datsch. He signed one of the immigration papers as Nachman Doitsch and another as Nachman I. Datsch.

Because of the arrival name difficulty when he later applied for citizenship, he had to submit proof that he was on board that particular ship. He gave an affidavit stating that when he left Amsterdam he left with his sister's two sons, and their name was Galpern which in English is Halperin. His arrival papers also stated that he came with his sister and her husband Shlome and Luzie Halperin and they were going to visit another sister in Providence, Rhode Island, whose name was Esther Shaffer.

On December 14, 1911, Nachman filed his declaration of intention to become a citizen. He listed his weight as 135 pounds, his height 5 feet, 4-1/2 inches and his address as 15 Douglas Avenue, Providence, Rhode Island. Later on February 19, 1915, he filed his petition for naturalization. In both, the declaration of intention and in his petition for naturalization, he listed his seven children, all born in Russia. His certificate of naturalization was dated October 5, 1923, on which is written "no minor children".

doing, and ask for his address so that he [David] can answer him, and you write to Kiev so that I can know how you are doing. [David Lvovich was the brother to Leib's wife Masya. He immigrated to the United States in 1913 and died in October 1918 from pneumonia caused by the 1918 Spanish flu. Bluma was unaware of his death at the time of writing this letter. They were to marry when Bluma came to the United States several years later.] Then I would have the gratitude and devotion of my favorite brother-in-law [Shurin] and my friend's sister. Kisses, Bluma

Letter 3. May be missing a beginning section - letter begins abruptly. This is Leib's letter (referred to in Letter 1 above). Leib is writing to his sister Sonia, with advice about how to behave as a new wife.

Learn the mother [i.e., Sonia's new mother-in-law] character and learn how to stand up for yourself with her. do not submit too much. Our people like to submit too much - what can you do. Do you have the tiniest doubt, or even the tiniest 100th percentage or even the very tiniest, 1/100th percent of a doubt regarding your new name. People no longer call you by the same name as you had at home. Do not lose sight of Srulik. Keep him with you; teach him everything that you know; everything that you feel and see. Be open/sincere with him, even though this is Srulik from home. He is your brother, and dear to you. He will understand you. Let him completely. Sonia, make him stay with you long enough for you to teach him. Srulik, don't lose this letter. Here they are mobilizing [all the time?] [Let him .... stay there with you]. Listen to me carefully. Despite the fact that we here at home will wait a long time for you, [to know how you're doing?], I send you all my best. Your brother, Leib

Give Pilinik [Sonia's new husband] my best regards. Tell him to look into our affairs. I would gladly leave with my family, and I send him much good fortune [happiness]. And I ask him to fulfill the oath that he swore before our parents on the day of your departure, that he will honor you, and if he does so, God will help him very much in his affairs [business, concerns]. With respect, Leib

Let Srulik conduct himself over there [so that it will all turn out for the best] Srulik, get settled over there. Find some person whom you can rely on and bring Aronchik [this refers to Leib and Masya's son Aaron Datz who at the time of this writing was about 6 years old] a little suit, a hat and shoes, if at all possible.

Your Leib
Greetings to my dear Piliniks

There are several other notations on the letter such as: David's address in America.

Dr. S. Levy (This refers to Samuel L. Lvovich (Levy) who was the brother to David Lvovich and Masya Lvovich Datz.)
430 Livonia
Brooklyn, New York

This letter was found in Aaron and Evelyn Datz's belongings after their death. The letter contains four pages of handwriting that is a blend of Ukrainian and pre-1918 Russian. It was written Leib Datz and Bluma Datz. It appears that this letter was written January 15, 1919.

Notes for Reizel "Rose" Dorfman:

Jody Imre, Paul's wife relates: Paul was so terribly fond of his grandmother. He would get embarrassed as a kid because of her accent and her chasing him down the street with a banana for him to eat!

On February 10, 1936, Rose filed with the US Department of Labor, Immigration and Naturalization Service a Certificate of Arrival, No. 2-38-2560. On February 25, 1936, Rose then filed her Declaration of Intention to become a US citizen with the State of New York, Southern District of New York as well as a Petition for Naturalization on April 19, 1943. Sol Datz and Sarah Schneider signed an Affidavit of Witness. The Petition was granted and a Certificate No. 5315211 was issued. (There is some conflict with Rose's birthdate on the Petition as well as the date of death for Isaac.)

She died in her grandson's arms, Paul Imre. One Sunday afternoon she wanted Paul to rub her back with alcohol. She began gasping, passed out and stopped breathing. Aaron and Paul carried her from the hearse to graveside. The plain wooden box was so light that they looked at each other in wonderment. They asked each other with their eyes: Is granny really in that box? They put the box on a canvas belt and watched the lowering and just then the sun clawed through the clouds and hit their sad faces squarely. As Paul tells the story -- the answer came to his 25 year old mind in a flash - of course she was not in that box and he knew that by the weight and the sun showed them where she really was. She was in us. And still is... Rose was married young and had about 13 pregnancies and 6 children who survived into adulthood.

<http://paulsilverstone.com/ship/milka-2/>

Refugee ship MILKA arrives in Istanbul, March 31, 1944.

The arrival in Istanbul harbor of the auxiliary schooner MILKA with 410 Jewish refugees in March 1944 was the beginning of a new traffic. Realizing they were on the wrong side of the war, the Romanian government approved the sailing of Jewish refugees. Many of this group had left Cernauti (now Chernivtsi in Ukraine) only a few days before the city was captured by the Russians. Despite the adamant opposition of the Germans, the ship left Constanta legally. With the help of the special US envoy in Istanbul, Ira Hirschmann, the people were put on a special sealed train for the overland trip to Palestine. This arrangement had been promised by the British government in 1942 after the catastrophic sinking of the Struma, but this was the first time it was invoked.

Milka 2 would have been the journey they made. Arrived in May 1944.

Notes for Joseph Jerry Kramer:
The Man Who Followed His Guided Missiles
Joseph "Jerry" Kramer is the 2004 Guam Business Executive of the Year

Fate took Joseph "Jerry Kramer, chief executive officer of Pacific International Inc., to Micronesia, and the Marshall Islands are the better for his business acumen and philanthropy.

Kramer's entrepreneurial spirit evidenced itself early in life. He worked part time from age 11 after school and during summer vacations his first job was cleaning fish in a fish market but that tendency was paralleled by a sophisticated intellect. At Milton High School, in Milton, Mass., he was president of the chemistry club, and a member of the radio club. A yearbook entry notes, Jerry, the electronics fan built electronic systems in his spare time, and invents gadgets of all sorts.

Kramer went on to college, continuing to work part time for a couple of electronics companies as he had done through high school. He says, "During my second year of college, my part time job was paying more than most graduate engineers were earning. I quit college, and worked full time, while going to school at nights.

Working as an environmental test technician for research and development testing of missile-guidance system components, he says, I had no idea where these systems were used, but by coincidence, when I left Boston and wound up in Los Angeles [working for Douglas Aircraft], I discovered the systems were used on the Nike Zeus missile scheduled for testing on Kwajalein and that led to my entry into the Marshall Islands.

With a zest for travel, Kramer applied to work at the Army test facility. I was instantly accepted, he says that Nike Zeus was my baby, and off I went.

Arriving in October 1961, he worked on the electronic integration of the guidance system of the missile, and later the arming.

In Kwajalein, Kramer also signed up for University of Hawaii extension courses, and the 20-year old began to get to know his Marshallese classmates. It was fascinating, he says to go from Boston to a tropical climate, and meet people of a totally different culture and background.

The young man soon realized the affinity he felt for the Marshall Islands, and the people. Kramer says, I tend to be very trusting up front, and very open, and I think the Pacific way emulates that attitude there were not a lot of hidden agendas with the local people. He says time has changed some of the values in the Marshall Islands. We have some astute college graduates that have picked up on how to put things forward, and what not to say. But still, he says, There's a real closeness of family that I enjoy.

Four pages of handwriting that is a blend of Ukrainian and pre-1918 Russian. It was written by Isaac Datz and his son and daughter, Leib Datz and Bluma Datz. It appears that this letter was written January 15, 1919.

Letter 1. Isaac Datz is writing to his daughter Sonia, who appears to have recently married and now living in Budapest, Hungary with her husband Pinilik (Paul Saphir) and her younger brother, Srulik (Solomon Datz).

My dear children Sonia, Pinilik and Srulik, Please listen closely to what our dear Leib has written, and read the letter from our dear Leib several times, and take into consideration his words, and pay good attention. Here at home they are now conscripting boys who were born in 1894, and our Srulik was born in 1901. No one knows what the future will bring. Your papa! Give my regards to your parents even though I do not know them. [Bye Bye]

My dear Sister, Try to ask Pinilik on my behalf to send a telegram to David and ask how he is doing, and ask for his address so that he [David] can answer him, and you write to Kiev so that I can know how you are doing. [David Lvovich was the brother to Leib's wife Masya. He immigrated to the United States in 1913 and died in October 1918 from pneumonia caused by the 1918 Spanish flu. Bluma was unaware of his death at the time of writing this letter. They were to marry when Bluma came to the United States several years later.] Then I would have the gratitude and devotion of my favorite brother-in-law [Shurin] and my friend's sister. Kisses, Bluma

Letter 3. May be missing a beginning section - letter begins abruptly. This is Leib's letter (referred to in Letter 1 above). Leib is writing to his sister Sonia, with advice about how to behave as a new wife.

Learn the mother [i.e., Sonia's new mother-in-law] character and learn how to stand up for yourself with her. do not submit too much. Our people like to submit too much - what can you do. Do you have the tiniest doubt, or even the tiniest 100th percentage or even the very tiniest, 1/100th percent of a doubt regarding your new name. People no longer call you by the same name as you had at home. Do not lose sight of Srulik. Keep him with you; teach him everything that you know; everything that you feel and see. Be open/sincere with him, even though this is Srulik from home. He is your brother, and dear to you. He will understand you. Let him completely. Sonia, make him stay with you long enough for you to teach him. Srulik, don't lose this letter. Here they are mobilizing [all the time?] [Let him .... stay there with you]. Listen to me carefully. Despite the fact that we here at home will wait a long time for you, [to know how you're doing?], I send you all my best. Your brother, Leib

Give Pilinik [Sonia's new husband] my best regards. Tell him to look into our affairs. I would gladly leave with my family, and I send him much good fortune [happiness]. And I ask him to fulfill the oath that he swore before our parents on the day of your departure, that he will honor you, and if he does so, God will help him very much in his affairs [business, concerns]. With respect, Leib

Let Srulik conduct himself over there [so that it will all turn out for the best] Srulik, get settled over there. Find some person whom you can rely on and bring Aronchik [this refers to Leib and Masya's son Aaron Datz who at the time of this writing was about 6 years old] a little suit, a hat and shoes, if at all possible.

Your Leib
Greetings to my dear Piliniks

There are several other notations on the letter such as: David's address in America.

Dr. S. Levy (This refers to Samuel L. Lvovich (Levy) who was the brother to David Lvovich and Masya Lvovich Datz.)

This letter was found in Aaron and Evelyn Datz's belongings after their death. The letter contains four pages of handwriting that is a blend of Ukrainian and pre-1918 Russian. It was written by Isaac Datz, Leib Datz and Bluma Datz. It appears that this letter was written January 15, 1919.

He reported for duty July 1943 and finished jump school October 1943 at Fort Benning, Georgia. Then 61 years later they honored his outfit - the 17th Airborne Division; 513th parachute infantry regiment for World War II exploits in Europe. These honors took place October 2004 on the "field of sacrifice" with a dedication of a monument in December 2007. The French/Belgium government dedicated this monument to Paul's outfit for liberating their towns and people in the Battle of the Bulge - awarding survivors. In May 2009 the Czech government honored the outfit - specifically F Company of 513th (of which Paul was an original member and which is the subject of a book "The Sky Men" by Kirk Ross and several other publications. The Czech group will open a museum about F Company exploits during Paul's 2 years and 5 months of active duty. His outfit was in Europe 18 months, earning 4 battle stars with arrow head, parachute wingers, combat badge, bronze star, purple heart and two presidential citations. Paul goes on to say "And the Nazis stopped killing the Jews". Grandma Rose read that in her Daily Forward too! To my comrades who gave all their tomorrows we promise to live all our todays with joy and love and honor.

Paul came to Baltimore for an Internship at Springfield State Hospital in 1952. Later he taught at the Johns Hopkins School of Hygiene and Public Health. He rose in the Baltimore County Health Department to become Director of the Southwestern (Catonsville/Arbutus) Community Mental Health Center. Biography

Dr. Alexander Gottschalk, an expert in radiation treatment, is director of the UCSF Cyberknife Radiosurgery Program. Using the Cyberknife, Gottschalk treats cancer of the brain and spine; breast, chest and lung; abdomen; kidney; and pelvis. In addition, he treats urologic cancer such as bladder and prostate cancer; gastrointestinal cancer such as pancreas cancer; soft tissue tumors such as sarcoma and thoracic cancer such as lung cancer, using other radiation treatments.

Gottschalk earned a medical degree and Ph.D. at the University of Chicago and completed a residency in radiation oncology at UCSF Medical Center. He is the recipient of numerous awards and grants, including the National Institutes of Health National Research Service Award, Medical Scientist Training Program Fellowship, UCSF Helen Diller Family Comprehensive Cancer Center Clinical Investigator Research Program Grant, the RSNA Scholar award and the ASTRO Junior faculty award. He is an associate professor of radiation oncology at UCSF and active in genitourinary research. He is developing clinical trials using inter-operative.

Research Overview

Dr. Gottschalk is involved in a number of clinical research projects. First, he has studied several methods of image-guided radiotherapy (IGRT), including, ultrasound, electronic portal imaging using gold seed fiducial markers and megavoltage cone-beam CT (MVCBCT). His research is one of the first to evaluate prostate bed motion in patients undergoing radiotherapy after prostatectomy. Dr. Gottschalk has investigated the use of MVCBCT for dose calculation and re-calculation as well as a novel high quality, low dose, imaging beam line. The dose re-calculation can be use for dose guided radiation therapy (DGRT).

Second, using the Radiation Oncology clinical database, Dr. Gottschalk has studied: the effectiveness of intraoperative radiation therapy (IORT) in the management of extremity sarcomas and renal cell carcinoma recurrences, permanent seed brachytherapy and high dose-rate brachytherapy (HDR) for the treatment of prostate cancer both as primary therapy and as salvage after radiation failures.

Third, he has been involved as a co-investigator in three trials: a Phase 2, Single-Center, Open-Label phase I/II study to evaluate safety and efficacy and Safety in patients who have resectable esophageal cancer and are treated with neoadjuvant cisplatin, irinotecan (CPT-11), ZD1839 (IRESSA®), and radiotherapy followed by surgical resection; a phase II study of radiation therapy, paclitaxel poliglumex and carboplatin in stage III non-small cell lung cancer; and a phase I/II open-label dose escalation study of anti-CTLA4 antibody with radiation for metastatic hormone refractory prostate cancer.

Forth, Dr. Gottschalk is involved with several RTOG (Radiation Therapy Oncology Group) studies. These have included several prostate cancer trials that investigate: high-dose vs standard-dose radiation for intermediate-risk prostate cancer; brachytherapy vs external-beam radiation plus brachytherapy for intermediate-risk prostate cancer; and standard fractionation vs hypofractionation for low-risk prostate cancer. Finally, as Director of the CyberKnife Radiosurgery Program Dr. Gottschalk oversees several of the stereotactic body radiosurgery (SBRT) trials for lung and prostate cancer. He has a particular interest in the use of CyberKnife SBRT for the treatment of prostate cancer, kidney cancer, and lung cancer.

Seymour Datz and Shirley Schoenfeld had the following children:

- i. CAROL ANN<sup>7</sup> DATZ was born on September 10, 1947 in New York City, New York, USA. She married Bruce John Breunig on August 28, 1970 in Lyndhurst, Ohio. He was born on September 28, 1948 in Cleveland, Ohio. She married an unknown spouse between 1971-1972 in Cuyahoga, Ohio, USA.

Notes for Robert Warren Datz:

Bob spent a meaningful two years working for Cesar Chavez at the California headquarters of the United Farm Workers. Commercial radio and newspaper work over many years led up to further branching into a multimedia practice based on further training in Web and graphic design at Clark University. He has worked as an editor in print and broadcast journalism as well as book publishing, and his endeavors have ranged from science and environmental topics to political affairs and human interest reporting.

It was obvious even before development of the Internet that it pays to use multiple media in approaching any communications goal. As a newspaper editor at Worcester's Telegram & Gazette, Bob was an early proponent of writers setting egos aside to place as much information as possible into easy-to-digest graphics, and he learned to produce those graphics using some of the earliest software.

Early training in audio and film contributed to an ongoing vision that took shape as datzmedia in 2002.

A hobbyist as a photographer and videographer, Bob offers photo illustration and enhancement among other services detailed in this Website. (excerpt from <http://www.datzmedia.com/about.htm>).

Obituary from the New York Times:
September 6, 2001

Sheldon Datz, 74, Pioneer in Molecular Chemistry, Dies
By KENNETH CHANG

Dr. Sheldon Datz, who helped develop a technique to observe the interplay of molecules during chemical reactions, died on Aug. 15 in Oak Ridge, Tenn. He was 74.

The cause was pneumonia following pulmonary fibrosis, said the Oak Ridge National Laboratory, where Dr. Datz worked for most of his career before retiring last November.

Dr. Datz was one of three scientists to share last year's Enrico Fermi Award, conferred by the federal government to recognize lifetime achievements in energy research.

In the 1950's, Dr. Datz, together with Dr. Ellison Taylor, director of the chemistry division at Oak Ridge, pioneered the field of crossed-beam molecular chemistry in an effort to investigate in detail how ingredients merged in experiments.

In conventional experiments, scientists mix chemicals and stir; they thus know the initial ingredients and the final product.

Dr. Herbert Krause, senior research scientist at Oak Ridge, said Dr. Datz and Dr. Taylor "wanted to study the dynamics of molecular collisions."

To that end, they produced two intersecting beams, or streams, of molecules. The initial experiments involved one beam of hydrogen bromide molecules and one beam of potassium atoms. The molecules underwent chemical reactions as they collided. The potassium knocked the hydrogen bromide apart; the pieces reformed as potassium bromide and hydrogen.

This technique let researchers view how the molecules spun and vibrated after the chemical reaction.

"It isolated everything that is going on," Dr. Krause said. "It then allowed theorists to do very detailed chemical calculations about what was happening in the collision."

The work provided the foundation for research that, in 1986, led to a Nobel Prize in chemistry for three other scientists.

Born July 21, 1927, in New York City, Dr. Datz published his first scientific paper while still a student at Stuyvesant High School, and in 1943, at 16, he worked in a Columbia University laboratory on research that was part of the effort to build the first atomic bomb. At 17, he joined the Navy and fought in the South Pacific in World War II.

Dr. Datz received his bachelor's degree in chemistry from Columbia in 1950 and a master's there in 1951. He then began work as a research chemist at Oak Ridge. He received his Ph.D. from the University of Tennessee in 1960.

After his work on crossed-beam molecular chemistry, Dr. Datz investigated the dynamics of ions slamming at high speeds into crystals, providing information about the electronic properties of the crystals.

More recently, he developed a technique for studying low-speed collisions between charged molecules and electrons, mimicking chemical processes that occur in interstellar space.

He published more than 300 papers in scientific journals.
