M 1 / 1857 Nowograd

It happened in the town of Nowograd on January 23rd (February 4th), 1857, at 2 p.m. There appeared the Jew Hersz Petlerowicz, the rabbi on duty of the Nowograd kahal, accompanied by the Jew Szlomo Judko (two names) Ilowicz Krymkiewicz, bacheleor, 18 years old, tailor by profession, living in the village of Grady, Nowograd district, together with his parents, son of Ilo Szlomowicz and Freyda Judkowna family Krymkiewicz, carters by profession, and Feyga Herszkowna Migdalewicz, maiden, 18 years old, born in the town of Nowograd and living also here together with her parents, daughter of Herszko Jankielowicz and Sora Mejerowna family Migdalewicz, tailors by profession, as well as with the witnesses the Jews Zelman Abramowicz Grodner, shames, age 69, and Herszko Berkowicz Wegrowicz, tailor, age 47, both from Nowograd, and today in front of him a religious marriage had been concluded between Szlomo Judko (two names) Ilowicz Krymkiewicz, bachelor, and Feyga Herszkowna Migdalewicz, maiden. This marriage had been preceeded by three announcements announced in the synagogue of Nowograd on January 5th (17th), 12th (24th) and 19th (31st), this year on Shabbat days to people attending a religious service. No reservations towards the marriage had been registered. The permission for the marriage had been given by the parents of both groom and bride, present in person at the ceremony. The newly-weds announced that no marriage agreement had been concluded. Then this document was read aloud by the rabbi who celebrated the wedding and signed by him. The newly-weds were illiterate.
