

Emergency Script

Paper-money issued in Beregszász

Background:

The Hungarian korona (crown) was used from 1892 until 1919 by the Austro-Hungarian Monarchy and from 1919, the Hungarian crown. Historically, there was a small revolution after WWI at the end of October, 1918, followed by a larger revolution starting on 19 March 1919, when the Hungarian communists wanted to recapture lost territories. It was not successful and a "anti-revolution" movement started.

The Kárpátalja (Carpathian) area and Beregszász, became part of Czechoslovakia in September, 1919, and there was a period of transition. During this period of transition, emergency money (script) was issued because the official money was less valuable. The script images below are examples of the interim tender (script) used in Beregszász at that time.
